After being a wedding planner for as long as you were, what was the motivation behind starting Aisle Planner?

I planned weddings and events for years using a mash up of different tools – excel spreadsheets, word documents, google docs and a host of project management tools. Even with all the different tools I was using at the time, I always felt really organized and in fact, my couples (and all of my vendors) would compliment on how organized I was. As my business grew and the more events I booked, the more I found myself overwhelmed. It's never a good place to be when you're doing something you know you love and are truly passionate about, but are so stressed out that you're no longer able to enjoy your work.

At the same time, I found myself dreaming of bigger and better things for my business, but frustrated by the fact that I didn't have (and couldn't find) the right resources and tools that were capable of moving my ideas forward. Add a husband and baby to the mix, and achieving the dreams I had set in motion all the while being a good wife and mom seemed impossible. And it turned out that I wasn't the only one feeling this way – once I started to share my frustrating with many of my colleagues and planner friends in the industry, I learned that most shared the same

What good is education if what you learn doesn't change your life. The Bridal Masterclass Experience is an innovative take on wedding pro education incorporating all forms of learning to maximize the application and integration of new ideas and change the trajectory of your business.
